KROMER INQUEST TO BE HELD AT MONONGAHELA THIS MONTH

End of Present Term of Court Will be Awaited For Investigation

NO DEFINITE DATE SET YET

Coroner Heffran Announces it Will Take Place After February 22 or 23—Jury Drawn and Many Witnesses Will be Subpoenaed.

The coroner's inquest into the death of Constable Peter J. Kromer of New Eagle, alleged to have been murdered on the night of January 19 at New Eagle will not be held until after the present term of court. Coroner Jas. T. Heffran gave out this information this morning when in Charleroi. The reason for the delay is that District Attorney Richard G. Miller may be enabled to give his attention to the case.

The alleged murder of Kromer occurred at the home of William Bush, where he is said to have gone to make an arrest. At the Bush home as visitors at the home were Harry Barton, of Charleroi and Christine Conway, formerly of Charleroi. These two with Bush and Jule Martin are now in jail at Washington awaiting action on the case.

The inquest will be held at the office of Undertaker Frank Beabout at Monongahela and probably the date will be after February 22 or 23.

Coroner Heffran has drawn a jury to hear the testimony. The members composing it are as follows: Sam P. Yohe, Isaac Smock, J. P. Barnett, J. F. Wilson, Robert Mackey and Frank Rische.

Whether or not the four now in jail will be brought back to Monongahela is a question that will depend entirely upon circumstances. All possible witnesses will be called and the case will be worked up carefully.

California Establishes Record. An unique as well as creditable record was established at California the past month. There was not one arrest and no instances of disorder during the month of January. In a town the size of California with the number of foreign inhabitants this is something unusual.

Russian Society to go to Monessen. The Russian Dramatic and Musical Association will go to Monessen Sunday to a meeting of the Red Cross Association to be held in the Olympic theatre. The Charleroi society will present comic opera and songs. The brass band of the association will render several selections.

A marriage license was granted in Washington Friday to Frank D. Chew of North Charleroi and Lottie May Hough of Charleroi.

One of the features of the meeting of the Athene club, which was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. R. "Eleanor Duse," and "Beatrice Cenci" were subjects of papers by Mrs. Herman Nebulung. "Life of the Gentlewoman of the Renaissance" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. C. R. Peregrine.

Myron Rodgers Writes From California of Hard Journey Into Mountains

STRIKES SEVERE BLIZZARD

Descriptive of his travels and experiences in California, Myron K. Rodgers, formerly of Charleroi, and now engaged in mining in California has written the following letter to his mother, Mrs. S. E. Rodgers here:

Dear Mother:

Sam, Harry and I were out last week to examine some mining property north of San Bernardino and I guess we struck some Pennsylvania weather. We left here Wednesday and drove to San Bernardino 60 miles through orange groves and lemon trees loaded with fruit—all the way over a splendid road. From there we followed the line of the Santa Fe railroad through Cajon canyon to the Mojave desert. We did not get off until 10 a. m. and we drove 120 miles that day. We got to Victorville at 4 p. m. and stayed all night and left the next morning and drove 40 miles across the desert—almost as level as the floor, and road as smooth as a pavement until we got to the foot of the mountains. Then we climbed up the mountains to an elevation of 7,500 feet, above sea level in the San Bernardino mountains. We had no snow until we reached an elevation of 6,000 feet and we got to within 3 miles of the mine with the auto. The rest of the road we climbed 1,500 feet in 3 minutes and snow was 2 and 3 feet deep. Then we left the auto and had our baggage taken to camp in a light wagon.

The auto did fine climbing. It went up grades on the mountain as steep all the way as the steepest grade below the house—ten per cent—the last mile in the snow. When it got a foot deep we changed to horse and wagon. We found a comfortable camp.

FINAL MEETINGS ANNOUNCED TO PRECEDE BEGINNING OF EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Advance Agent for Tabernacle Meetings Expected to Arrive Early Next Week—Union Prayer Meeting to be Held Wednesday

The final cottage prayer meetings at the home of Mr. George Alfie, in preparation for the Minges' Evangelistic campaign to begin next Thursday evening in the large tabernacle on Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue will be held next Monday and Tuesday nights. It is expected by that time the advance man of the company of seven evangelists will be on hand to direct affairs.

The places for the holding of the prayer meetings will be as follows: Monday night—at the home of C. S. Van Voorhis at 710 Sixth street; at the home of Mrs. Joseph Taylor, 323 Washington avenue; at the home of Harry P. Jacobs, 408 Crest avenue; at the home of Mrs. Bartley Burke, Center avenue, North Charleroi. Topic, "Pentecostal Awakening." Reference, Acts 2:29-41.

Tuesday evening—at the home of Minton Shipe, 405 Shady avenue; at the home of A. L. Bowers Sixth street and Shady avenue; at the home of Charles Clerihue, 608 Washington avenue; at the home of I. O. Wycoff, Fourth street and Fallowfield avenue;

When the advance man comes he will, among other things, take up the preparation of music. Names of members for a large chorus choir have been obtained and he will give some attention to the direction of the choir. On Wednesday night a union prayer meeting will be held by the members of the First Christian and the Baptist churches at the First Christian church.

FATHER OF LOCAL MAN DIES IN WASHINGTON

Homer Lewis, Aged 63 Years, Expires Friday After Ten Weeks Illness at His Home at the County Seat—Funeral on Sunday.

Homer E. Lewis, aged 63 years, one of the best known residents of Washington, and the father of Howard Lewis who is employed at John's pharmacy here, died at Washington Friday afternoon at 4:10 o'clock. His death came after ten weeks illness. Ten weeks ago he was stricken of duodenal ulcers and four weeks ago suffered a slight stroke.

Mr. Lewis was a native of Morris county and was born there May 16, 1852, being a son of William and Rebecca Kilgore Lewis. He received his education in the district school of that place. He followed farming in his native township until 18 years ago when he moved to Washington and engaged in the grocery business which he followed until ten weeks ago when he was compelled to give up his business owing to his sickness which resulted in his death. He was widely known throughout the southern part of Washington county and was held in high esteem among his acquaintances.

Forty years ago last June Mr. Lewis was united in marriage with Miss Mary Elizabeth Jordon of Jefferson, Greene county. To this union five children were born, all of whom survive with the wife. They are: Frank C. Lewis, a druggist of Washington; Dr. O. G. Lewis a practicing physician of Washington; Mrs. I. N. Sprows and Miss Margaret Lewis,ington schools, and Howard Earlington's schools, and Howard Earl Lewis a druggist of Charleroi. Two brothers and two sisters also survive, John N. Lewis of Dunn's Station; Harvey T. Lewis, Morgantown; Mrs. K. C. Thompson, and Miss Henrietta Lewis of Beech street, Washington.

Short funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 3:30

The pre-Lenten euchre arranged to be held in St. Jerome's Lyceum Monday evening promises to attract a good sized crowd. Twelve handsome favors have been provided. The series of euchres at the Lyceum are proving popular. A lunch will be served.

o'clock, followed by regular services at the Central Presbyterian church at Washington, of which church Mr. Lewis was a member. Interment will be in the Washington cemetery.

SCHOOL PEOPLE MEET AT NORMAL

Regular Program for Superintendents and Principals Being Carried Out

CAPT. HOBSON FAILS TO COME

The regular program of events is being carried out at the second annual conference of superintendents and high school principals from Western Pennsylvania at California Normal today. Friday night Capt. Richard Hobson failed to appear to give his lecture on "The Great Destroyer" and his place was filled by Dean Chambers of the University of Pittsburgh.

This morning a general discussion of school matters was a feature. This afternoon four addresses are being made by Supt. Orton Lowe, of Pittsburgh, Dr. Charles Veon and Principal W. S. Hertzog of the Normal and Dean Clifford B. Connelley of Pittsburg.

Thompson Found Not Guilty.

Percy Thompson, colored, who on the evening of September 27, 1914, shot and killed John Bukoski at Reisinger in Cecil township, this county, was acquitted Friday evening. The jury reached such a verdict after several hours deliberation. They had gone out about 11:45 yesterday morning and it was 4:30 before they agreed. They believed the story of the defendant that he shot Bukoski when he thought Bukoski was about to make a murderous attack upon him with a knife.

A Methodist bishop in the Northwest tells of a conversation he once had with a Wyoming man touching certain difficulties of the latter's religious tenets, according to Harper's Monthly.

"Bishop," said this naive Westerner, "I do not refuse to believe the story of the ark. I can accept the ark's great size, its odd shape and the vast number of animals it contained, but when I am asked to believe that the children of Israel carried this unwieldy thing for 40 years in the wilderness I must confess that my faith breaks down."

The Greensburg Argus has a "Here and There" column that is rather brilliant conducted, and in which some quips of a decidedly interesting nature find their way. Following are some of the choice bits from this week's issue:

Nearly every woman feels sorry for some other woman's husband.

Some women would rather be married than be happy.

However, there is a kind of national success in keeping out of war.

"Will civilization endure?" asks a contemporary. Well, enduring seems to be its long suit at present.

WAR BULLETINS

London, Feb. 14.—The official information bureau issued the information yesterday that thirty-four naval aeroplanes raced Bruges-Zeebrugge, Ostend and Dantzigberghe, all in Belgium. The object was to destroy German submarine bases, and much damage was done. Claude Graham-White flight commander, who is widely known in America, was rescued by French marines under the enemy's fire after his aeroplane had fallen into the sea.

Berlin, Feb. 14.—Germany looks upon Great Britain's action in permitting the use of neutral flags upon their vessels as a means of leading that country into complications. A breach of neutrality is hinted.

London, Feb. 14.—Under the observation, if not the command of Emperor William, the Germany army has taken the offensive in East Prussia, compelling the Russians to evacuate their positions east of the Mazurian Lakes. The Russians call their movement a strategic movement.

Paris, Feb. 14.—The French war office has been pleased to announce the complete failure of the German offensive in Poland.

CHARLEROI HIGH SCHOOL

WINS EASY GAME 52-21

East Washington High School Team No Match for Fast Charleroi Basketball Players—Game on Local Floor Interesting.

The Charleroi high school had what in slang is termed a "dead cinch" in defeating the East Washington high school five on the Charleroi gymnasium floor Friday evening by the score of 52 to 21. In team play and in basket shooting, as well as in foul shooting the Charleroi lads had the visitors outclassed.

So easy did things seem in the first half that in the second part of the game the second string men were run in and the game was still easy.

Lowstuter was in the contest from start to finish, and was the leading scorer, getting 10 baskets. Clerihue showed good form in the first half with five baskets, and in addition caged four fouls. Stahlman, in the whole struggle manipulated six baskets. Ryland got two and Fiedler one. Lineup:

Charleroi High—52	East Wash—21
Clerihue F	Vester
Lowstuter F	Post
Lutes C	Rankin
Stahlman G	Hawkins
Speers G	McClain

Substitutions—Fiedler for Clerihue. Ryland for Lutes. Delvaux for Speers. Hibbs for McClain. Field goals—Clerihue 5, Lowstuter 10. Stahlman 6. Ryland 2. Fiedler. Post 3. Hawkins. McClain 2. Points awarded—East Washington 3. Fouls—Clerihue 4 of 7. Fiedler 2 of 6. of 8. Referee—Steyler.

SHEEP DOG TRIALS.

Australia's National Pastime, the Maltese Cross Test.

Sheep dog trials may be considered a national pastime if not a national annual agricultural show in every town and village in the pastoral parts. There are general competitions on the lines of the American county and state trials. There are horse races, buck jumping, shearing, log chopping and other strenuous competitions. But not one of these excites more interest than the sheep dog trials, and in these tests Australians have set the example of certain of the most serious trials that a man and a dog may be asked to accomplish with three strange sheep—sheep that had never previously met until they had a moment before been turned out from three separate pens to be panted or gathered together by the dog.

It was the Australians who first put forward, and they still maintain it, the Maltese cross test. The eight six-foot hurdles are set in the shape of a Maltese cross. The passages are of a width that will permit only one sheep to pass through at a time. The animals have to be driven north and south and east and west, all the passes being open at the time. The skill and patience of the dog are here tried to the utmost, and there can be little wonder there is a gust of satisfaction and a cheer of joy when the sheep have been successfully driven through these narrow ways.

The Australian sheep dogs are the smallest in size in the world, but are quick and lively in their work. It is no wonder that the Australian gives much thought for his dogs, for it goes without saying that the work of the sheep station could not be accomplished without them. In ordinary cases it is reckoned that one dog can do the work of half a dozen men; in many instances a dog is superior to fifty human beings, and where there are such vast flocks of valuable sheep, such as the merinos in Australia are, it would be impossible to round them up so that they may be examined, counted and duly looked over without the dogs—Argonaut.

LAWS OF THE INCAS.

A Code That Was Remarkable For Its Benevolent Simplicity.

Among the most remarkable laws of the Incas were those concerning taxation. The principal feature of those laws was that taxes were not paid in money, but in work and in produce, whether manufactured or grown. The Incas emperors thought it unjust to demand that taxes should be paid in any kind of commodity that the people could not produce by their own personal labor.

The people also paid another sort of tribute. They made clothes, shoes and arms for the soldiers and for the poor who could not work themselves owing to age or infirmity. The cloth was made of wool from the flocks of llamas that abounded in the mountains. On the plains of the seacoast, where the climate is warm and they do not dress in woolens, the people made cotton cloths, the cotton being supplied from the crops of the emperor. The shoes were made in the provinces where aloes were most abundant, for they were made of the leaves of a tree called maguey. Each province furnished its own produce, and no province had to supply anything that did not belong to it.

There was a mandate that forbade beggary and destitution; that, of course, followed upon the provision of their laws. Every citizen was provided for theoretically and practically. No man need be idle; no man need lack land or seed or implements for cultivation; therefore no one was permitted to beg. If any were found doing so it was clear proof of idleness, for the incapable were provided for, and contempt and punishment were meted out on all tramps, vagabonds and idlers.—The Secret of the Pacific.

For the Sake of Argument.

"Well, now, for the sake of argument—is there a more irritating phrase? Is there any greater bore than the person who habitually employs it? We feel that to oblige him we would not even assume that two and two make four."—Youth's Companion.

An Unsolved Problem.

"How, sir, is it possible?" demanded counsel of a bankrupt who was undergoing his public examination. "To live in the luxurious style you have affected for $40 a year?"

"That," replied the bankrupt, "is a problem to which I have devoted considerable time in the interests of social economy, and the results of my humble efforts are now before the court."—London Mail.

Bridgeton, N.J.—"I want to thank you a thousand times for the wonderful good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered very much from a female trouble. I had bearing down pains, was irregular and at times could hardly walk across the room. I was unable to do my housework or attend to my baby; I was so weak. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me a world of good, and now I am strong and healthy, can do my work and tend my baby. I advise all suffering women to take it and get well as I did."—Mrs. FANNIE COOPER, R.F.D., Bridgeton, N.J.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonies on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

REWARDS FOR CONSPICUOUS AND EVERY DAY SERVICE IN THE NAVY

Secretary of the Navy Daniels presenting honor medals to thirteen sailors for bravery at Vera Cruz, Mexico. Presentation took place on board the battleship Florida at the Brooklyn navy yard. View of medal also shown.

On the afternoon of Jan. 6, 1914, there were assembled on the quarterdeck of the United States ship Florida in the presence of the secretary of the navy, the commander in chief of the United States Atlantic fleet, his staff, the captains and officers of vessels then in port and hundreds of their comrades-of-the-ranks, who had shared their dangers and borne with patience months of tedious duty in a tropical clime, thirteen of the fourteen enlisted men of the navy who so distinguished themselves under fire at Vera Cruz that they were to receive the much prized medal of honor. It was the tribute of the country, voiced by that branch of the service in which they served, for their meritorious conduct when put to the severest test. In addressing our newest heroes at the presentation exercises, Secretary Daniels said:

"The medals presented today are tokens of a grateful country's appreciation of work nobly done, of duty well performed, of readiness to face grave danger. They are given to men who by their conduct under fire have won renown not only for themselves, but for their companions in arms, their comrades who, while hoping for opportunities for themselves, yet rejoice in the good fortune of their supermates in being where the fight was thickest, the field of service greatest, for that is the ambition of men bearing arms. And that is one of the most pleasing elements in the gratification we feel today--this readiness to extend the merit and the honor to all who wear the uniform."

"You know that the signal most prized in the fleet is the one flying from the flagship telling, with its letters of many colors, that something has been 'well done,' and that, while some particular one, perhaps, has won it, yet the honor is for the ship and all its crew of officers and men whose teamwork has made the winning possible."

"The bluejacket! Let us take off our hats to him in the street, for his uniform is the blue badge of courage; take him by the hand, for his hand protects our homes; treat him with respect, for he rings true, and his heart is of the finest gold."

The medal of honor is the highest recognition any American can receive from his government. All fourteen who received the medal of honor received also a gratuity of $100. Thirteen of them were advanced six months ago to the next higher rating, and the fourteenth man was given permission to participate in the next examinations for warrant officer.

All fifty-two of the other enlisted men who distinguished themselves less than those awarded the medal of honor received letters of commendation from the navy department. Six were allowed to participate in the next examination for warrant officer, and forty-six were immediately advanced to the next higher rating than they then held.

Such are the substantial rewards the navy accords her heroes. These are, however, symbols of recognition for services that are unusual, caused generally by circumstances we strive earnestly to avoid. Through the dispensation of a protecting Providence we seldom have had to brave the dangers of the sword, and in the annals of our history the peace hero vies for distinction with the hero baptized by fire.

But before relating how Uncle Sam rewards the peace hero let us see what happens to his naval employee who acquits themselves with credit in the ordinary functions of their profession.

Prize winning gun crews of the United States battleship Arkansas receiving trophies from Captain Roy C. Smith while on the high seas. In addition to a cash prize, each man may wear the coveted letter "E" (for excellence) until his gun crew is defeated in a future competition.

Eight, amounting to $15.75 a month, for retirement after service in the navy, army or marine corps is credited.

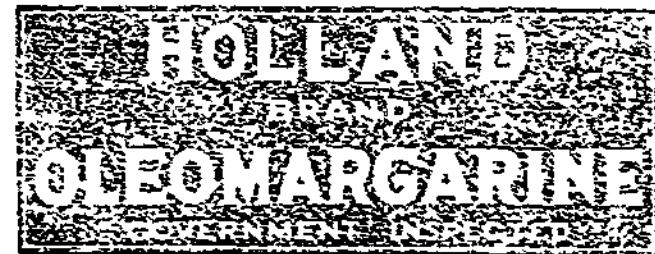

In case of loss of life in active service the dependent relative designated as beneficiary receives such pensions as are prescribed by the law, and when disabilities are incurred in the line of duty disqualifying a man for further naval service he receives a pension allowance, regulated according to the seriousness of the injury.

Good conduct is, of course, essential to success in every walk, and although bad conduct non-compliance with the regulations, tardiness and slovenly deportment can be tolerated least of all in military professions, the men who comport themselves well during two enlistments of four years each may, upon the recommendation of their respective captains, wear the good conduct medal, which carries with it $2 cents a month additional pay.

Good conduct is rewarded also with more frequent and extended leave than that allowed offenders of discipline. Leave is always granted to men with good records as frequently as conditions allow, and during the Christmas holidays it is extended over a recruiting station, Indianapolis, Ind.

HOW WOUNDS HEAL.

Nature's Processes Play a Large Part in the Operation.

Few people have any idea of the wonderful process by which wounds heal. Starting dressing, etc., are important operations, but none of them can make good the damage or replace the loss of tissue in a wound. This is the work of our good friends in the blood, the white corpuscles, the "scavengers," so called because they destroy disease germs.

When a wound is made, a bone broken, a nerve torn, etc., it is closed by these corpuscles finding their way out of the blood vessels into the surrounding tissues that the injuries by bullet or bayonet are repaired. The union of broken bones, nerves, skin, etc., is effected by the corpuscles finding their way into the coagulated blood which surrounds the injured parts.

They throw out what are called "processes," become fixed and join each other. A new tissue is thus formed, which becomes endowed with blood vessels. Fibers follow, and these serve to keep the torn tissues of the wound in what is surgically called "opposition."

In this tissue, in the case of a broken bone, bone salts are deposited; where nerves have been torn by a bullet nerve fibers grow, and so on. These fibers in the course of healing contract, and it is by this power of contraction that the edges of a wound are brought together and united--Pearson's Weekly.

Boys as They Eat. Jerome K. Jerome in one of his unashamedly sentimental but conscientiously clever essays remarks:

It is amusing to see boys eat when you have not got to pay for it. Their idea of a square meal is a pound and a half of roast beef with rice or six cool sized potatoes (soapy ones preferred, as being more substantial), plenty of gravy, and four thick slices of Yorkshire pudding, followed by a couple of currant dumplings, a few green apples, a pen worth of nuts, half a dozen jumbles and a bottle of ginger beer. After that they play at horses. How they must deserve us men, who require to sit quiet for a couple of hours after dining off a spoonful of clear soup and the wing of a chicken!

An Explanation.

The chairman of the program committee was embarrassed. After much chafing he said:

"I am very sorry, ladies and gentlemen, I am very sorry indeed, except me and ladies, it gives me deep regret, ladies and gentlemen, to be compelled, gentlemen and ladies, to come here too well in extension but, ladies and gentlemen, the lady who will sing next is a bore. We suppose gentlemen are ladies, that she has been providentially detained." -- New York Post.

Data of Elegance.

Hiram, said Mrs. Cornettsel at the dinner party, the wife's decorations were elegant, weren't they?

"Yes," said her husband as he pushed the finger from away. "There's only one little thing they forgot."

"What's that?"

"They didn't put any goldfish in the little aquarium." -- Washington Star.

Worry Kills More Men Than Fever

The workman who is continually worried over financial difficulties is carrying a double burden—he's worse than the man with walking typhoid fever. Horace Fletcher says "Worry is a sneak thief." It constantly steals the man's strength of mind and body. Eliminate the worry habit by starting a savings account with this bank, add a small percentage of your salary each pay day—it will care for those financial difficulties that come to the family from sickness and other misfortune.

INSPECTION TRIP

and the mountain covered with pine timber, some trees being 4-12 feet in diameter. It was really a beautiful place. I had no idea that within 25 miles in an air line from the orange groves of Riverside and San Bernardino, loaded with oranges, there is a spot as much like Alaska as any place I ever saw. There was more snow than at "Nickel Plate" mine, B. C. or "Hidden Creek." The day we arrived the sun was shining and temperature above freezing. We looked over some of the property the same day we arrived, breaking trail through 2 feet of snow. That night a "snow storm limited" arrived from Chicago or Montana and I never experienced anything in Montana or Alaska that equaled this wind and snow storm. The next day it rained first then turned to snow. We started out next morning to look over more of the property, five of us each taking turns going ahead breaking the trail through 2 to 4 feet of snow over steep mountain sides. It took us 3 to 4 hours to go a mile. We got back about 2 p. m. tired and wet to the waist. It snowed about a foot while we were out and got colder. The wind never let up a 50 mile gale. Talk about blizzards in Montana! This California blizzard beat Montana a mile.

The tunnel and underground workings were all right to examine but surface workings were all filled with snow so we concluded to come back to the orange groves for a month or two until the snow melts. We were told there was snow after March 1 until the 15th.

Saturday morning we started back for Los Angeles, leaving the camp about 8 a. m. placing our baggage on pack horses and packing some things ourselves. We had more trail breaking in places. There was not much above the snow but the ears of the horses but we got back to the machine about 10 a. m.

While we did not make the examinations we expected we did examine the weather conditions of the property and know what to expect in winter. We dug the machine out of the snow and it started off like it was anxious to get back to Los Angeles too.

The road down the mountain was full of rocks in places as it was thawing now and loosened the rocks on the sides of the mountains. We rolled the ones too big for the machine to climb over and were soon down the 10 miles of steep road to the level desert below out of the snow to a good sandy road. We found it had been raining and the roads were muddy in spots and water pools were all along the road. The sandy soil is favorable for good roads as they soon dry up. We reached Victorville on the Santa Fe about 3 p. m. and was informed there that Cajon Canyon was washed out and an auto had returned that had attempted to go through. We said we were from Missouri and would go to see. It was 20 miles to the summit over a beautiful road and rich soil all the way. It is just being settled and will some day be a garden spot. I saw some apples as large and fine as in Hood river, Oregon and at this elevation 3,000 feet, it may make a fine apple region. Water is scarce except at this time, and if the excess water reservoir it will certainly make a good fruit and farming country.

We got to the Cajon summit about 4:30 and found that the rain had swollen the canyon stream and the road was in bad shape but we picked our way down the canyon about 15 miles long. The Pierce Arrow with Sam driving followed us wherever we went. We waded the stream to make sure the machine would not stick in the quick sand. Where the road was washed out or covered up by slides we took to the stream bed.

About half way down the Canyon came upon 20 men and a big Pierce Arrow 6-ton truck of the Ed. Co., which they had been 2 days digging out of a slide. It was dark and they were all at Cajon station, the half way station of the Canyon. They saw us coming by our headlights and came over the road to tell us that the road was blocked and washed out from there down worse than it was above and they were going to ship their auto truck on a freight train to Los Angeles and the men were all ready for the train which just then came in sight 7:30 p. m.

We said we were from Missouri and would have to see so we started and found we were over the worst of the road and in one and a half hours (9 p. m.) we were eating supper in San Bernardino and wired back to the station agent at Cajon to tell the truck driver we were there. Our experience across the continent taught

THEY LIKE PRISON LIFE.

A Class of Persons in Japan Who Try to Break Into Jail.

In Japan there are people who make sham confessions in order to obtain a period of comparative warmth and comfort of a Japanese prison. The Japan Mail says: "The police slabs of the capital has words to describe and distinguish these persons. Meshi wa or the rice criminal, will steal one small article from a shop front in such a way as to be seen doing it. He then makes a bolt of it, pursued by the master of the shop, or some faithful kozu, but presently allows himself to be caught and handed to the police. He has to do time for his pretended theft, but his rice is secured for a period, and when that period has elapsed he will allow himself to be caught again."

"The 'mudan,' or 'elbow' criminal, will be the one just mentioned. He does not actually commit a crime, such as will put him into the convict side of the prison, but allows himself to be found looking in suspicious places, underneath the broad verandas of a temple, or in the garden of a private house. He gets into prison all right, but he secures the more generous treatment of the house of detention, which is to the fare of the convict jail what a dish of eels is to a bowl of plain rice."

"The 'kuruma' is a criminal who makes a sham confession in order to get a free railway ride. Recently a man gave himself up to the police in Sendai as the perpetrator of the crime. He was brought to Tokyo and his story investigated. It was found to be a pure fabrication."

us to never listen to a calamity howler about bad roads. The Pierce Arrow with a good Missourian driver like Edwin or Sam makes impassable roads passable. We were now just 25 miles from home and had good roads, but ran slow on account of a bad tire. Got home about midnight and found we hadn't had all the storm up in the mountains. In places the road was covered nearly a foot deep with black, slimy mud which made driving dangerous.

From the papers it seems the storm extended over a wide area of this country. The heavy seas have damaged a great deal of property here along the coast.

I was glad to have made the trip as it gave me some inside information about the climate of southern California I had not experienced before.

JOHN MUIR AND TREES.

The Great Naturalist's Plea for the Preservation of Forests.

Few men loved and knew trees better than John Muir, the naturalist of the Sierras. He fought hard to preserve the forests, and in one of his books he says:

"All sort of local laws and regulations have been tried and found wanting, and the costly lessons of our own civilization show conclusively that the fate of the remnant of our forests is in the hands of the federal government and that if the remnant is to be saved at all it must be saved quickly. Any fool can destroy trees. They cannot run away, and if they could they would still be destroyed--charred bones, branching horns or magnificently bowed backbones. Few that fell tree plant them. Nor would planting avail much toward getting back anything like the noble primeval forests. During a man's life only saplings can be grown in the place of the old trees of centuries old--that have been destroyed. It took more than 3,000 years to make some of the trees in these western woods--trees that are still standing in perfect strength and beauty, waving and surging in the mighty forests of the Sierra."

Through all the wonderful events centuries since Christ's time--and long before that--God has cared for these trees, saved them from drought, disease, avalanches and a thousand straining, leveling tempests and floods, but he cannot save them from fools. Only Uncle Sam can do that."

AN ARCTIC DRAMA.

Playing to the Coldest House Known in Theatrical History.

Many and many a play has had a chilly reception. But imagine what it must have been to witness a play or to be an actor therein in a temperature 25 degrees below zero. It was a company of American sailors who made the record of playing to "the coldest house known in dramatic history."

Dr. Kane, the famous arctic explorer, told an audience at old Masonic hall along in the fifties of a play given at an exceedingly low temperature by the crew of one of the ships on the 14th of February, 1851. The play was the farce called "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York."

The outside temperature was 36 degrees below zero in the "theater." It was 25 degrees below behind the scenes and 20 degrees below where the audience was seated. One of the sailors had to enact the part of a damsel with bare arms, and when a cold nation, one of the properties, touched his skin, the sensation was that of a hot iron.

On Washington's birthday the crew had another performance. Outside the ship's thermometer was 46 degrees below zero. Inside, by the aid of lamps, it was only 30 degrees below zero. "The condensation," said Dr. Kane, "was so excessive that we could barely see the performers. They walked in a cloud of vapor. Volumes of smoke accompanied all vehemence of delivery. Their hands steamed. When an actor took off his coat it smoked like a dish of potatoes."

The Practice of Kicking.

Kicking, like charity, should begin at home. It ought to be the duty of everybody at home to object persistently and effectively to the specific overcrowded street car, the badly paved road, the encroaching doorstep, the neglected yard, the malodorous cesspool, the irresponsible motorcar and the reckless railroad--especially if he have any personal part in the maintenance of similar abuses. If the tendency of these evils were rightly apprehended, if a part only of the effort that is expended presumably in objecting to the generalized, foreign and futile subjects were bestowed on specific and tangible details, if we would forego the emotional pleasure of the impersonal "muckrake" to assail the evil at our very feet--especially if each one of us were careful to avoid offense in matters of the same kind, our country would surely be a much fairer one--Unpopular Review.

No Accent.

Many stories are told of a former Canadian bishop who had passed his youth in Scotland, but daffled himself that not a hint of his origin could be gained from his speech or manner.

One day he met a Scotchman, to whom he said at last abruptly, "How lang ha ye been here?"

"About six years," was the reply.

"Hoot mon!" said the bishop sharply. "Why ha ye na lost yer accent, like myself?"

When Astronomy Was Young. The astrophysic Venus when she was evening star and by the name of Phosphorus when she was morning star, for until her motions were studied it was not known if the two stars were one and the same planet.

Con Abrasion.

By mere spite caused by coins rubbing one against another the civilized world, it is said, loses one ton and a quarter of gold and eighty eight tons of silver annually.
